Naked body in cemetery

Police found a half-naked dead body in a Queens cemetery yesterday morning. According to police, they found the body of a man, 42, unconscious on the ground at about 10 a.m. at Calvary Cemetery. According to the New York Post, a mourner visiting the graveyard first found the body and called police. The man's pants were down around his ankles but there were no signs of trauma.

Cops punished

The police officers involved in the 2006 Sean Bell shooting were forced to retire, the NYPD announced Friday. Officer Giscard Isnora, who shot the first bullet, was fired without benefits, effective immediately on Friday, and three other officers involved will be forced to resign, although they will be able to keep their benefits.

Cops look for parents of abandoned baby

SUNSET PARK. New York City police officers are desperately trying to find out who would abandon a baby boy, discovered by a neighbor in an apartment building in Brooklyn during the weekend.

At about 2 p.m. on Saturday, police responded to a 911 call reporting a baby found in the foyer of a building on 62nd Street in the Sunset Park neighborhood.

The baby had been discovered by a woman taking out her trash.

Once they arrived, police officers discovered a Hispanic baby boy, about two to three months old, sitting in a car seat on the foyer floor.

A diaper bag holding diapers and formula was found on the floor next to him.

The infant was transported to nearby Lutheran Hospital, where he was in stable condition yesterday.

Police canvassed the area where he was found but could not find the parents. Officials are asking anyone with information about the boy or his family to call them at 800-577-TIPS.

L train argument ends in death

BROOKLYN. A college student was killed by an L train after a man pushed him onto the tracks Friday night, police said. Joshua Basin, 20, was riding the L train when a drunk man started berating riders in the car and then started arguing with him. As the train pulled into the Bedford Avenue station, the man attacked Basin. Both fell onto the tracks, cops said. The attacker climbed back on the platform and ran, but Basin was left on the tracks and crushed to death by an oncoming train. ● METRO/AB

Police shoot Bx. woman

BRONX. Police shot a woman Friday after she threatened them with knives. Cops responded to a 911 call, reporting a woman stabbing herself. When they arrived, a man told them that his girlfriend, 42, had taken kitchen knives and was stabbing herself. The woman threw a 10-inch knife, which struck an officer's hand, and officers shot her in the thigh after she refused to drop the second knife. The woman is in stable condition. ● METRO/AB

Living the good, clean life in the big, bad city

► Newest Jet looking for some wholesome fun ► Tim Tebow finds himself the hottest pew ticket in town ► Just don't expect to find him in the club

Tim Tebow will be officially unveiled as a Jet today during a team press conference at noon, but the evangelical QB has already gotten a taste of what big, bad New York City has to offer.

That is, if attending a Saturday night showing of "Wicked" is your definition of being naughty.

The newest Jet took in the Broadway show after arriving in town Thursday. And if he's looking for a church on Sunday mornings, several have already come courting: The minister of Life Christian Church in West Orange, N.J., offered him an invitation to attend and Christian City Church in Midtown also said they want him as a member.

Tebow has scouted out homes in Morristown, N.J. and the mayor, Tim Dougherty, offered the quarterback a tour, saying the quaint, white-picket-fence hamlet would be a perfect place for Tebow, as opposed to the island of Manhattan.

FOX Sports, citing an anonymous source, said Jets officials are actually encouraging Tebow to live in New Jersey, far from the temptations of the city that never sleeps.

"They are not going to want him to be influenced and distracted in the city," said the source.

If Saturday night is any indication, Tebow, who is a devout Christian, teetotaler and virgin, will be pursuing good, clean fun when he crosses the river. At Jay-Z's 40/40 club, he can order sparkling cider, which workers promised to keep on hand for him. And Brother Jimmy's BBQ created a "No Sex on the Beach" drink in his honor, a virgin version of the original.

The Carnegie Deli will unveil the "Jetbow" sandwich today. This is the first time in 55 years that the city institution has served a sandwich made with mayonnaise and white bread, instead of the traditional rye.

"It's because Tim Tebow is the all-American boy," owner Sandy Levine told Metro. "He's been a model child of America, and everybody knows white bread and mayonnaise throughout America."

Other Jets behaving badly

Tebow is joining a team of players who haven't always been known for being on their best behavior. Last year, quarterback Mark Sanchez was accused of having a liaison with a 17-year-old Connecticut high schooler. She later boasted of the hook-up on Facebook and posted photos of his bedroom. In 2010, the Jets gave cornerback Antonio

Sober Saturday suggestions

Here are some ways Tebow can unwind in New York without being tempted by happy hour or Times Square peep shows:

- Stroll on the High Line
- Frozen hot chocolate at Serendipity — it's still OK to indulge in sugar, right Tim?
- Cherry blossoms at the Brooklyn Botanic Garden
- Jog in Central Park

NY tough for clean living

Dr. Arnold Washton, an addiction psychologist, said New York can be a tough place to live sober. "There's no shortage of alcohol and drugs, especially among the rich and famous," he said. But, he added, "There's more to do in New York City without getting drunk or high than just about anywhere else."

Sen. bashes employers seeking Facebook data

▶ Asking for usernames, passwords in job interviews may be illegal, pol says ▶ Requests feds investigate

Potential employers should not be able to request your Facebook password to comb your profile before they make hiring decisions, U.S. Sen. Charles Schumer said yesterday.

According to reports, some employers are asking applicants for Facebook usernames and passwords so they can look through biographical information. Schumer, a Democrat who represents New York, said that employers who make such outrageous requests may be violating federal law.

The Associated Press reported that one statistician applying for jobs in New York City was asked for his Facebook username and password during interviews. According to the AP, Justin Bassett was interviewing for a job when the interviewer searched for his Facebook page in front of him. When she discovered that the profile was private, she asked him to log in. He refused and withdrew his application.

“Employers have no right to ask job applicants for their house keys or to read their diaries. Why should they be able to ask them for their Facebook passwords?”

SEN. CHARLES SCHUMER

Facebook responded to the complaints on Friday, saying that those who ask for passwords are violating their policies and such a request “undermines the privacy expectation and the security of both the user and the user’s friends.”

“Employers have no business asking for your Facebook password,” Schumer agreed.

Schumer asked the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and Justice Department to determine whether the practice is illegal.

He pointed out that giving over Facebook passwords could provide employers access to information they otherwise cannot ask about, like religion, marital status or age.

Last week, Illinois lawmakers introduced a bill that would make the increasingly common practice illegal in that state.

North Korea will achieve nothing from rocket launch: Obama

SEOUL. U.S. President Barack Obama said yesterday that North Korea, which has planned a rocket launch for next month, will achieve nothing through threats and provocations.

Obama, talking on the eve of a nuclear security summit in Seoul, said such a launch would increase reclusive North Korea's isolation. North Korea says the rocket will send a satellite into orbit. REUTERS

Chavez starts radiation therapy, may meet Pope

CARACAS. Venezuela's Hugo Chavez said yesterday he had started radiation treatment in Cuba, where he could also meet Pope Benedict in the latest high-profile development as the president tries to fight off cancer and win re-election.

Chavez was back in Havana a month after he had surgery there to remove a second malignant tumor from his pelvis. The treatment will take him off the political stage just as his election rival gears up a nationwide campaign tour ahead of the Oct. 7 vote.

In a phone call to Venezuelan state TV, Chavez said he's undergone the first of five sessions of radiation therapy.

"Last night I had the first session, fortunately without any kind of problems. Early tonight I'll have a second application," he said. "God willing, I will be in Venezuela on Thursday." REUTERS

Rallies held around the country for Trayvon Martin

Rallies are being held in cities across the country this weekend to protest the failure of police to arrest a Florida neighborhood watch volunteer for shooting to death an unarmed black teenager.

Protesters, some dressed in "hoodie" hooded sweatshirts like the kind 17-year-old Trayvon Martin wore at the time of his death, gathered for events in Columbia, S.C.; Washington, D.C.; and Chicago on Saturday.

A protest is planned today in Sanford, Fla., the Orlando suburb where the shooting took place.

Martin was shot dead on Feb. 26 after George Zimmerman, 28, a white Hispanic neighborhood watch captain, believed the young man walking through the gated community in a hoodie looked suspicious. Zimmerman followed Zimmerman has not been arrested, though state and federal authorities are investigating.

Syrian forces on offensive; Annan in Moscow

BEIRUT. Russia offered "full support" for peace envoy Kofi Annan's efforts to end fighting in Syria yesterday, but said his mission would need more time as forces loyal to President Bashar al-Assad attacked Homs and other rebel strongholds.

Moscow also reiterated its stance that foreign support for the Syrian opposition was the main obstacle to peace, while U.S. President Barack Obama and Turkish Prime Minister Tayyip Erdogan discussed how to get nonlethal aid out to the opposition. REUTERS

Killings occurred in two waves

The U.S. Army sergeant accused of killing 17 Afghan civilians is believed to have carried out the rampage in two stages, returning to base after the first shootings and then going out to kill again, a U.S. official said on Saturday.

The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, did not offer further details about the investigation into the March 11 shooting spree in southern Afghanistan, which has further eroded U.S.-Afghan relations already frayed by a decade of war.

But the disclosure points to an extended timeline for the alleged killing rampage by Staff Sergeant Robert Bales, a decorated 38-year-old veteran of four combat tours in Iraq and Afghanistan. REUTERS

▶ A villager points to a spot where a family was allegedly shot in their residence by Staff Sergeant Robert Bales in Alkozai village of Panjwai district, Kandahar province.

Afghans: US paid $50,000 per shooting spree death

U.S. authorities have given cash compensation to the families of Afghans killed in a shooting rampage allegedly carried out by an American soldier in Kandahar province, a family member and a tribal elder said yesterday.

The families received around $50,000 for each person killed and about $10,000 for each wounded in the shootings in two villages in Panjwai district earlier this month. Afghan officials say 16 people, including nine children and women, were killed in the attacks.

"We were invited by the foreign and Afghan officials in Panjwai yesterday, and they said this money is an assistance from Obama," Haji Jan Agha, who said he lost his cousins in the attack, told Reuters — referring to President Barack Obama.

The U.S. embassy directed all questions to the NATO-led International Security Assistance Force, which is fighting the war in Afghanistan.

An ISAF spokesman said he was in not in a position to either confirm or deny whether compensation was given or not — and if so, how much.

Lieutenant Commander Brian Badura said that as a matter of policy ISAF does not make restitution for losses resulting from combat, combat-related activities or operational necessity.

"Individual troop contributing nations may participate in some form of restitution consistent with the cultural norms of Afghanistan," he said. "Settlement can come in a number of forms which may [be], but is not always, financial." REUTERS

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Anti-spending pol's home town feels pinch

Republican Rep. Paul Ryan's budget-cutting vision has made him a hero to conservatives across the country. It's less popular in his home town.

As Ryan's proposal to slash taxes and spending started to move through Congress last week, local officials in the humble Rust Belt city of Janesville, Wisc., scrambled to recover from last year's cutbacks.

The U.S. Department of Housing clawed back $344,000 from the city's affordable-housing fund, so the Janesville Community Development Authority voted to drain its reserves to keep its 525 families in the program. The city won't have to put anybody out on the street, probably. But there is no cushion left.

There's less money for job training, health clinics and the food bank; higher property taxes and higher car fees; larger school class sizes; crumbling roads and fewer firefighters.

"It's like being in a fight against five or six people," said City Council President Russ Steeber. "Every time you turn around you're getting punched from a different direction." REUTERS

Rick Santorum cruised to victory in the Louisiana Republican presidential primary on Saturday but still trails Mitt Romney by a wide margin in the national delegate count for the party nomination. Romney, a former Massachusetts governor, was projected to finish second. Former House of Representatives Speaker Newt Gingrich was third but immediately rejected the idea of dropping out. Ron Paul, Texas congressman, ran fourth. Cheney gets transplant

Former Vice President Dick Cheney was recovering on Saturday after undergoing heart transplant surgery.

The 71-year-old who wielded unprecedented power as vice president during the George W. Bush administration's war on terrorism, was in the intensive care unit at Inova Fairfax Hospital in Falls Church, Va.

Cheney, who has suffered five heart attacks, the first at age 37, had been on the cardiac transplant list for more than 20 months before he received the heart from an anonymous donor.

Cheney's transplant followed a series of procedures in recent years to extend the use of his heart. Cheney had bypass surgery in 1988 and later had two angioplasties. In 2001 he had a defibrillator implanted in his chest. REUTERS

Will health care law survive court ruling?

► "In today's political climate, once you have an explanation that takes more than two sentences, you're screwed," says economist Jonathan Gruber, who supports the individual mandate, "because someone else will have a one-sentence lie."

The moment that conservative America has been waiting for these past two years is nearly upon us. This week the Supreme Court will hear arguments to determine the constitutionality of ObamaCare, the health care reform law that has become the president's signature legislative accomplishment as well as the most powerful weapon in his rivals' arsenal. Justices will devote three days of oral arguments to the issue — the most consideration given to any one law in nearly five decades — but particular attention should be paid to tomorrow's debate concerning the individual mandate, that component of the law that imposes a low annual fee on individuals who refuse to pursue insurance coverage. The legality of the individual mandate, widely demonized by the right as a freedom-crushing measure synonymous with government takeover, may determine the ultimate fate of the whole song and dance. (Point of fact: The individual mandate is a Republican

ObamaCare?

A quick update on the language: President Obama, on the reform law's two-year anniversary last week, finally embraced the "ObamaCare" smear once and for all. "You want to call it ObamaCare," he told an Atlanta audience on Friday, "that's OK, because I do care." We therefore feel it is now appropriate to refer to the dreaded health law as its right-wing opponents intended.

idea, developed by a conservative think tank, first proposed by Republican legislators, originally made law by a Republican governor and now vehemently opposed nearly uniformly by the Republican party.)

So why the individual mandate? Well, conservative experts — including, perhaps most infamously, former Mass. Gov. Mitt Romney — understood the economic necessity of bringing more individuals into the private insurance system as a means of lowering costs and improving services. The individual mandate, they concluded, ensures that insurers remain profitable enough to provide high-level services to all Americans.

In an unabashed indictment of party politics, conservatives opposed the idea as soon as Obama picked it up in 2008. But supporters of the so-called mandate point out that current industry wrongs — like excluding pre-existing conditions and shifting health costs onto taxpayers — far exceed any freedom crushing that might be claimed against it. As MIT economist Jonathan Gruber puts it: "No longer will people be bankrupted because they have a bad gene or a bad traffic accident."

The Supreme Court won't come back with a decision until sometime this summer. If the justices rule against the mandate, that could tank the whole law. And if they don't? Well, don't expect Republicans to let that get in the way.

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

CLUB OWNER WANTS DRAKE TO PAY FOR POT BUST

► Is Drake responsible for the marijuana bust and subsequent arrest of the manager of the Dollhouse Lounge in Oklahoma City?

A rapper smoking weed? Not that surprising. A rapper smoking weed in Oklahoma City? Well, also not that surprising. What else is there to do in Oklahoma City?

Earlier this week, Drake — the former child star turned lover boy — was reportedly responsible for a huge cloud of pot smoke in a VIP area, which caused the Dollhouse Lounge to close down — even though they opened for the night especially for him, according to TMZ. But here's where the story gets weird: The spot's manager claims that once he and the staff smelled the smoke, they shut the party down. Then the cops came (apparently to help "restore order") and they discovered a half-burnt joint where Drake and his entourage were previously hanging. So they arrested the club manager — not Drake — and now the he's mad and wants Drake to help him out with the various tickets, which amount to several thousands' worth.

A half-smoked joint found in an ashtray causes not only an arrest but also a lawsuit? "Crime" in Oklahoma City is adorable. What do managers expect when they rent out a club to a world-famous rapper and his entourage? A knitting circle?

Jolie takes on leg-haters

Angelina Jolie, whose right gam and odd gunslinger pose at the Oscars launched a meme, a Twitter feed and impersonators, now tells the Huffington Post: "I honestly didn't pay attention to it. I don't watch those TV shows, and if I go online and see something about myself I don't click on it. And the people I surround myself with don't really talk about this kind of stuff. I heard something, but I didn't pay any attention. It's as simple as being a woman picking a dress you like and having a night and not really thinking about anything else."

Oh, come on, Jolie! Can't you ever admit when you do something ridiculous? And yes, constantly sticking your leg out as though it was sniffing around looking for dinner was ridiculous.

'MDNA' is potent stuff

Madonna is a bitch out of order, a bat out of hell and a fish out of water. At least that's what she compares herself to in the song "Gang Bang," off her brand new album, "MDNA." The album officially comes out tomorrow, though it leaked online late last week. Madge's claim about being broken, angry and alienated is a succinct self-analysis.

It's been four years since her last album of new material, the longest gap of her nearly 30-year career, which would explain the fish-out-of-water feeling.

As far as the bitch out of order and the bat out of hell, her venomous personal lyrics on this album make it difficult to distinguish Madonna, the pop legend from Madonna, the mortal whose eight-year marriage to director Guy Ritchie ended in a bitter divorce.

"I tried to be a good girl, I tried to be your wife," she sings on "I Don't Give A."

This confessional intimacy makes it difficult to criticize Madonna for imitation, which she does indulge in a bit on "MDNA." To that charge, the material girl is just as much of a smart shopper as she's always been, using the baddest guest stars (including Nicki Minaj and M.I.A.) and the best producers (including Martin Solveig) to bring her sound into now. If she can't define the times, she's certainly not going to be behind them. And really, anybody she's borrowing from wouldn't be making music if it weren't for her. The racecar basslines and Skrillex-style monster breakdown would seem forced if not done properly. But it's Madonna, and even if she is a fish out of water, she can always get into the groove.

'Hunger Games' stuns with $155M opening

"The Hunger Games" opened with a staggering $155 million in estimated U.S. and Canadian weekend ticket sales, beating Hollywood's loftiest expectations and ranking as the third-highest domestic opening in history.

The debut for the film, which tells the story of an oppressive society's teen death match, ranked behind only last summer's "Harry Potter" finale and 2008's "The Dark Knight," distributor Lionsgate Entertainment said.

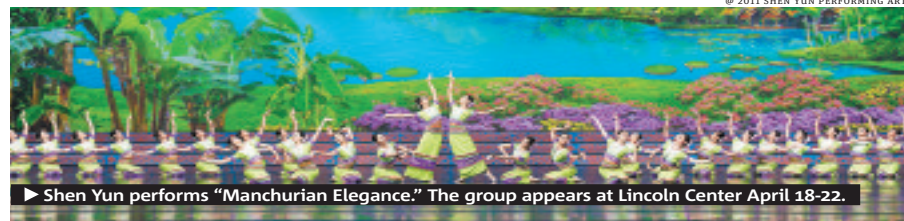

The performance topped industry forecasts for an opening of about $125 million.

"Hunger Games" set records for highest opening of a film that was not a sequel and biggest debut outside of the summer blockbuster season, Lionsgate said. REUTERS

► Shen Yun performs "Manchurian Elegance." The group appears at Lincoln Center April 18-22.

1. World's top classical Chinese dancers

"Shen Yun is making every effort to bring back the traditions, to bring back the most authentic, and the most beautiful part of Chinese culture through classical Chinese dance," says Yungchia Chen, Shen Yun choreographer and principal dancer.

"That's our mission."

2. A unique East-West orchestra

"To get the ethnic style and characteristics just right, there's nothing better than using Chinese instruments like the dizi, erhu [and] pipa," says Joy Tan, Shen Yun composer. "The music is arranged so that the Western wind and string instruments serve as accompaniment, and the Chinese instruments play the lead melody." Jing Xuan, Shen Yun composer and pipa player, explains that "Chinese instruments' tonal quality is also closely tied to Chinese philosophy."

Fear-mongers are only going to bring you down

The question: I'm embarking on a number of personal changes in my life and will need full support from my friends. For whatever reason, they tend to be negative about everything and not very supportive of me. Why are they like that and what should I do?

Simply put: They're fear-mongers. They could win the lottery and find something wrong with it, have the day off from work and whine or get promoted only to moan and groan. They complain about everything and anything, so don't personalize it.

It's important to surround yourself with positive people as you embark on change. To help you weed out those who aren't, take a look at the checklist below. Think about people in your life and ask yourself the following:

- ▶ Is the person generally negative?
- ▶ Is the person unhappy in his or her career, family and/or relationships?
- ▶ Do you feel exhausted after spending time with the person?
- ▶ Is the person demanding or self-absorbed?
- ▶ Is there a lot of drama and

No more drama

JONATHAN ALPERT

WWW.JONATHANALPERT.COM

crisis in the person's life?
▶ Does the person have a victim's mentality?

If you answered "yes" to most of these questions, then you know that the person isn't going to be supportive of you when you pursue your goals. Keep your distance and maintain boundaries. Now is the time to put your needs first. Don't feel obligated to remain friends — doing so only enables the behavior and drains you. Be strong and stand up for yourself. Be proud of what you've set your sights on. Align yourself with like-minded, positive people who share your interests and goals. This will help drive you forward. Check out my new book, "BE FEARLESS: Change Your Life in 28 Days," to learn more about how to purge yourself of fear-mongers.

DREAM JOB: LEGO'S MASTER MODEL BUILDER

Andrew Johnson has the job you wanted when you were 6 — and likely still covet now. As the new Master Model Builder of LEGOLAND Discovery Center Chicago, the 23-year-old designs 3-D LEGO models for the families that visit. Last week, he completed his first display since starting full-time at the beginning of the month.

"I just made a cardinal — that's the state bird of Illinois," he tells us. "It's a lot of fun to be able to design something and watch it come into creation so fast."

Plenty of aspects of the job could be described as "a lot of fun," which is why the position isn't easy to come by. There are only four Master Model Builders in the U.S. and an additional eight abroad. Johnson landed the gig after competing against eight other finalist applicants in a "build-off," during which he created a replica of Chicago's Daley Plaza Picasso sculpture, a model of the Lorax using less than 40 LEGO pieces and an especially tricky audience-member request: a violin and a hands-free harmonica.

For now, Johnson — who is one credit shy of a degree in history from DePaul University — isn't concerned with big-picture career questions or especially eager to join his friends in the cubicles.

"It's one of the only toys I can think of that you don't

His building style

Johnson has been playing with LEGOs since he was a child, but sharpened his skills while working at a camp where the toys were used to teach architecture and engineering. "There are people who have a lot of kits, but I'm more of a free-builder — I haven't used instructions in a long time," he says. "I don't buy kits, just the basic building blocks. It's a lot of trial and error."

4 Tools for finding the perfect job

CREATAS

When you're on the job hunt, it's easy to take an "anything will work" approach to the scope of your search. Everyone remembers the grade-school saying "beggars can't be choosers," but it's not enjoyable to be saddled with a job that's not a good fit.

Here's some good news: There are simple tools that will not only ensure the jobs you're applying to are great fits for your personality, but also customize your current job portfolio to give you an edge.

Here's a roundup of four tools that can give you the edge in finding the perfect job.

► For weekly social media and Web job listings, visit www.mashable.com.

Resunate

It's easy to think of a potential employer as the venerable "man behind the curtain." Resunate attempts to get rid of the curtain altogether by showing users just how their résumés look to a recruiter or potential employer. This tool parses your entire uploaded resume and compares it to the description of the job you're after, acting the way an employer's applicant tracking system would work. Then, you get a score from 1 to 10 that determines how well your application would stack up in the ATS.

LunchMeet

Ofentimes, securing the job that's perfect for you isn't about what you know, but who you know. LunchMeet is a spanking-new mobile app that gives you the opportunity to put yourself in front of business recruiters, upper-level execs and others in your industry without pressure. Simply sign up with your LinkedIn account and search to see what professionals are available for networking over lunch or coffee. Meeting with these professionals is also a great way to get an inside look at a company if you're looking to break in or change industries.

Indeed

Indeed's search engine makes the pain of the search a little simpler. Thanks to its minimalist and straightforward design, it just takes a couple of seconds to set up a recurring search protocol and a profile that displays your résumé to potential recruiters. With no up-front cost and little hassle, it's also easy to set up an alert system that will e-mail you whenever a potentially relevant job — based on strictly specified keywords — comes up.

Glassdoor

If you're interested in learning about the HR culture and work environment at a company, Glassdoor is a must-use.

- With everything from interview recaps to blind salary reports, Glassdoor gives the skinny on all aspects of a company from anonymous voices on the inside.
- Another useful feature of the website is the "CEO Approval Rating," letting you know how employees feel about their leader and upper management.

Leftists too smart for our own good

RE: "BLACK-AND-WHITE WORLD-VIEW FALLS FLAT": I have to laugh at the responses to my letter printed on Thursday. I built what I thought was a straw man of leftist ideologies — a caricature — and left-wingers defended it! I am shocked by the responses of people who are "better educated" and "smarter" than me. Sadly their idea of critical thinking amounts to "Bush lied, people died" and bad-mouthing Fox News. Never would they question anything MSNBC or any other corporate-owned leftist propaganda outlet spouted.

JOSHUA TORDOFF, VIA E-MAIL

Liberals and conservatives are two sides of the same coin. Presidents on both sides have started unjust and aggressive wars without the authority of Congress. Both sides use bailouts and/or stimulus as justification to "save" the economy. And both sides have increased the budget and expanded the debt since the 1920s. All of these activities by our federal government rip off the people every day. KELLY DONNOE, LYNBROOK

Trayvon Martin: Justice served?

Obama's appeal to the hearts and souls of Americans as a result of the overzealous, fatal actions of George Zimmerman should not have depended on whether Trayvon Martin was black, white or yellow or that he might have looked like Obama's son. It appears that Obama expresses concern only if an outrage occurs against a black. When the Black Panthers intimidated whites at voting booths Obama's black attorney general, Eric Holder, refused to prosecute. I want a president who represents all races, not just his own! JOSEPH DUPONT, VIA E-MAIL

The shooting of unarmed Trayvon should not have happened. A nation is outraged, and rightly so, when a neighborhood watch goes beyond the law. FREDERICK R. BEDELL JR., GLEN OAKS VILLAGE

More Bush? How about less bias?

RE: "IS AMERICA READY FOR ANOTHER BUSH?": Are we ready for more Bush? The answer is a very firm no! By continuing to blame President Obama for the current financial crisis, the other Republican presidential candidates must believe Romney's Etch-A-Sketch tactic will work for them as well. Realistically, however, there's simply no erasing the dismal record of just how fiscally irresponsible the Republican Party is when it comes to the economy. President Bush turned a record surplus into a record deficit by implementing numerous disastrous fiscal policies during his presidency. Putting a Republican back in charge of the economy is equivalent to putting a fox in charge of the hen house, and America most definitely cannot afford it.

JEAN INGLIS, VIA E-MAIL

I was on the train reading Metro when I thought I was experiencing motion sickness. Then I realized I was suffering the ill effects of the spin in the Metropolitan column, where Brayden Simms chastises Mitt Romney and Karl Rove for spin. Gee, if that isn't the pot calling the kettle black I don't know what else is!

Joba released from hospital

▶ Chamberlain recovering from gruesome ankle injury
▶ Will be in cast for six weeks ▶ Future still unknown

Yankees pitcher Joba Chamberlain was released from the hospital yesterday afternoon after suffering a freak ankle injury Thursday.

Chamberlain was on a trampoline at a local recreation center with his son Karter when he suffered an open dislocation of his right ankle. The bone protruded through his skin and Chamberlain reportedly lost a large amount of blood.

He underwent surgery at the hospital immediately.

Since Friday, when Yankees general manager Brian Cashman first spoke with reporters, Chamberlain's outlook has improved, but there is still no timetable for his return. He will be in a cast for six weeks.

The Yankees feared the injury might be career-threatening initially, but that looks unlikely now. Cashman said yesterday the injury recovery was progressing "as well as can be expected."

Chamberlain was already working his way back from Tommy John surgery last June.

Michael Pineda started and looked sharp. He pitched five innings and allowed one run. He had four strikeouts. Derek Jeter, meanwhile, led off the game with a home run.

Mr. Tebow, meet the press

On the day before Tim Tebow was to be thrown to the New York media wolves, Jets owner Woody Johnson made it expressly clear the trade was solely for on-the-field reasons.

"Let me be really clear about this, we work for the fans and the fans want us to win games," Johnson said at the NFL's annual spring meeting yesterday. "So all of the decisions we make regarding the team are just for football. It's hard to predict other things."

Financial analysts may disagree. Jockey, one of Tebow's endorsers, has already posted a giant billboard near the Lincoln Tunnel. Former Jets lineman Damien Woody straight out called it "a marketing ploy."

Not so, says Johnson.

"Tim Tebow will be a good addition to the team," he said. "From a football standpoint, he adds flexibility, versatility [and] he's a great athlete and he's a big athlete."

He could also add a huge headache for Mark Sanchez and head coach Rex Ryan. Sanchez was signed to an extension just a few weeks ago and while general manager Mike Tannenbaum repeatedly stated in a conference call last week that Sanchez was the starter, Ryan has already heard the questions.

"I told [Sanchez] we got another competitor who is going to make our team better," Ryan told ESPN. "Mark wants to win. He's good."

The New York Post reported yesterday that some teammates were already grumbling about the treatment afforded their new teammate — a backup quarterback.

And yet, when Tebow is introduced today at noon they will be doing it from a practice field instead of the media room. The media room wasn't big enough the Jets said.

Red Bulls beat Rapids in NY debut

They said it wasn't a must-win game, not entering their third game of the season after an 0-2 start, but the New York Red Bulls sure played like the fate of their season rested on this match.

They got the complete effort they needed in yesterday's 4-1 win over Colorado in their home opener.

Behind two goals and an assist by Thierry Henry and a

Kenny Cooper brace, the Red Bulls frustrated a depleted Rapids midfield.

After starting the season with road losses in Dallas and Salt Lake by a combined 4-1 mark over the past two weeks, New York needed this win.

"You lost two games, you know, you're a little bit under pressure," head coach Hans Backe said. "You need to perform; you need to dig in. We want to be unbeatable in our stadium; that has to be the target. Make it the fortress, not just words."

The Red Bulls came out with determination after their rocky starts in the past two games. Within six minutes, both Henry and Cooper had scored giving New York a lead they would never relinquish.

It was the most goals that they've scored since a 5-0 win on July 6 last year over Toronto FC.

"I think you could see the hunger in the team. Guys were playing with great energy and enthusiasm. It was great to get off to a good start in the game. From back to front, everyone was fantastic, from the first minute to the last guys were tuned in," Cooper said.

"The important thing is obviously the result."

Jeffries out two weeks

The Knicks got some bad news before their easy win over the Pistons on Saturday night.

Backup center Jared Jeffries will be out at least two weeks with inflammation in his right knee. He injured the knee against Philadelphia last week. He missed the game against Toronto last Friday as well.

Jeffries' contributions on the offensive end are minimal, but he can be a crucial component of their defense. He is a long and athletic defender who can guard any position on the floor.

► Jeffries

Jeffries missed four games earlier this month due to a right leg injury and 10 games at the start of the season with right calf problems. Jeffries had surgery in the knee last year.

The Knicks take on the Milwaukee Bucks tonight at Madison Square Garden at 7:30 on MSG. METRO

Tiger back on top at Bay Hill

► Woods gets first PGA win in over two years ► Shoots 2-under Sunday

Tiger Woods is back on top of golf. And really, when you've won 71 PGA Tour events, what's two and a half years between victories?

Woods went into the final round of yesterday's Arnold Palmer Invitational at Bay Hill with a one-stroke lead. By the time he'd played one hole he had a three stroke lead and after 18 holes he'd cruised to a two-under day and five-stroke win.

Just two weeks ago, Woods walked off the course at the Cadillac Championships after injuring his left Achilles tendon. And the downward spiral talk renewed itself again.

Woods answered in resounding fashion this weekend. Woods led the tournament in birdies made and stared down Graeme McDowell, who was ranked as high as No. 4 in the World Golf Rankings last season, in the final round.

Woods' last win came Sept. 13, 2009 in the BMW Championship. He won six tournament that season and none since.

If he was going to break his drought anywhere, it's no surprise he did it here. The win was his seventh career at Bay Hill.

The Masters are just two weeks away. METRO

► Woods has historically used Bay Hill as a tune-up to the Masters, which begin April 5.

PUBLISHERS NOTE
All real estate advertising herein is subject to the Federal Fair Housing Act of 1968 and state and local fair housing laws. The Fair Housing Act makes it legal to advertise any preference, limitation or discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, handicap, familial status, or national origin or an intention to make any such preference, limitation or discrimination. State or local laws may make unlawful advertising that discriminates on the basis of age, marital status, or sexual orientation. Metro US will not knowingly accept any advertising for real estate which violates the law. The law requires that all dwellings advertised be available on an equal opportunity basis. If you have any questions regarding housing discrimination, call the Long Island Housing Services at (800) 660-6920 in Long Island or the Anti-Discrimination Center at (212) 346-7600 in New York City. Pharmacist Technician

The Elizabeth Seton Pediatric Center serves children from infancy through age 21. We've moved to a beautiful, brand new state-of-the-art facility in Yonkers, NY. We are seeking a Pharmacist Technician.

The successful candidate will have
Board Certification as a Pharmacy
Technician; at least 1 year of experience as a Pharmacy Technician in a dispensing capacity is preferred. An individual who demonstrates strong clinical, computer and interpersonal skills as well as the desire and ability to work as a member of our interdisciplinary team will achieve great success at our Center.

Competitive salary and great benefits. For consideration, please send your resume to: Elizabeth Seton Pediatric Center, 300 Corporate Boulevard South, Yonkers,
